New Leader for HPSJ Governing Board Adds to Already Strong Provider Expertise
Greg A. Diederich is the new chair of the San Joaquin Health Commission, HPSJ's 11-member governing board, as of January 14. January 5 was his first day on the job as Director of the San Joaquin County Health Services Agency, and as an ex officio member of the San Joaquin Health Commission. With over 19 years in private and public sectors of the health care industry, he most recently spent seven years at Stanislaus County Health Services Agency where he was associate director for clinical services.

While there, many at HPSJ had the pleasure of working with him as we expanded the Medi-Cal program in Stanislaus County. In addition to being well-informed about that region of the HPSJ geographic service area, Greg Diederich has a deep understanding of the current health care landscape and he adds to the already considerable provider expertise contributed by current San Joaquin Health Commission members Drs. Marvin H. Primack, Gentry Vu, Mohsen Saadat, and Michael Herrera.
